

Ain't It Like a White Man

Ain't it like a white man to think he's woke

After all he's dated black women before
Can pronounce your name on the second try
He even "discovered" himself in africa (where in africa? We will never know)

Mans cultured, eats fufu with his hands
Finger detangles his "curls"
Bet he watched dear white people
Bet he gets it now
Bet he told you to watch it

But ain't it just like a white man to assume
To assume you're okay with taking up as little space for them as possible
To assume they have a right to your body, to your time

Ain't it like a white man to say he's better than that
To say that THIS doesn't apply to him
To say you're now making yourself the victim

Ain't it like a white man to be offended by this to call this reverse racism to call this oppression

Ain't it like a white man to want to claim they're oppressed like you to claim that you're now the oppressor

Ain't it like a white man to be woke like that?
