

Men of Shade

Living in fear everyday

No idea if it's safe to go out and play

Cops could we waiting with their merciless ways

Stop you from breathing they may, whether they know it or not,
to them it's all the same,

Look at Floyd, they carried on in acknowledgement of his pain,

And thrived in killing a man in vain,

They silenced a man, we'll scream his name

Shit hasn't really gotten better since the days of the slave.

They roam their streets knowing they have a higher chance of meeting their grave

Because their law enforcement forces them to cave

Step down the wrong street and you'll get bullet shaved

How did they grow to attract such hate?

Cos the whote man who went to conquer became afraid

Of the physical superiority of the men of shade

And their lands were rich with things to trade

So let's invade, steal all their shit, rape their women
And maybe for the kids we can get paid.

The men who moved would get torn in two by a rifle, so still they laid

No one came to their aid.

And it seemed the mentality stayed,

If you are white with a badge you were carved with a superior blade.

Trust me when I say God had equality on his mind when he made humanity, but we aren't so humane.

We make waking up safe feel so mundane

Never settle
